

Guide to Common Offenses for University Students

The Newark Police Department is the primary law enforcement agency in the City of Newark and handles all incidents occurring on property not owned by the University of Delaware. University students who reside in housing not owned by the University will be within the jurisdiction of the Newark Police Department. Students may still be subject to sanctions by the University of Delaware Office of Community Standards and Conflict Resolution for offenses that occur off campus.

The following is a list of common offenses for which students may have police contact. This list does not constitute legal advice and is only a synopsis of some state laws & city ordinances. The specific ordinance language can be found via a link from our website at newarkde.gov/police. All offenses, except where otherwise indicated, are criminal offenses. Fines and costs are subject to change based on law & ordinance changes. CLICK THE LINK TO READ EACH LAW OR ORDINANCE.
